The complainant claims title under his deed, which appears to have been executed and registered, prior to the date of the attachment; but he insists, if the Chancellor shall be of the opinion that his deed is inoperative to pass a valid title to the land, that he, as a creditor of the defendant, Mc-FARLAND, is entitled to priority of satisfaction. Mrs. Houston answers and insists that prior to the execution of the deed by MoFARLAND to the complainant, the former was guilty of treason against the Government of the United States, and that the voluntary conveyance of his lands to the complainant was, under the act of Congress approved July 17th, 1862, commonly known as the "Confiscation Act," an absolute nullity, and wholly inoperative and void, and that she, as an attaching creditor, prior in time, is entitled to priority of satisfaction. LIVINGSTON and wife failed to answer, and judgment pro confesso was regularly entered

The Chancellor held the deed executed by the defendant, McFARLAND, to the comdainant, utterly void under the act of Congress, declared the proceedings at law by at-achment irregular, and directed a sale of ands to satisfy complainant's debt. 1. The controlling question presented in this record arises on the construction of the 6th section of the act of Congress, approved July 17th, 1862, which is as follows, viz: That if any person within any State or Territory of the United States, other than those named as aforesaid, after the passage of this act, being engaged in armed rebellion against the Government of the United States, clares, section 4, 121, that "Justices of the Peace are vested with the power-1, To not, within sixty days after public warning and proclamation, duly given and made by the President of the United States, cease to grant writs of attachment returnable to the Fronit Court in the same manner, and to the same extent as the Circuit Judge." and return to his allegiance to the United States, all the estate and property, moneys, stocks and credits of such person shall be liable to seizure as after the person shall be liable to seizure as aforesaid, and it shall be the daty of the President to seize and use them, as aforesaid or the president to seize and use restrain its meaning by construction, within the jurisdiction of Justices of the Peace in them as aforesaid, or the proceeds thereof. And all sales, transfers, or conveyances of such property, after the expiration of sixty 3d. The objection that the attachment in of the said days from the date of such warning and proclamation, shall be null and void; and it shall be a sufficient bar to any suit this case was returned to the Circuit Court at Dandridge, and received and endorsed, "filed" by the Clerk of that court some shor brought by such person for the possession or use of such property, or any of it, to allege had by its own limitation expired, it alike and prove that he is one of the persons desume after the term of the person of t time after the term for which he was elected, had by its own limitation expired, it alike

The object and purpose of this act of Congress, as declared in its caption, is "to suppress insurrection, to punish treason and llion, to seize and confiscate the property of rebels, and for other purposes." The leading idea and central thought that ran through the whole body of this act, is the speedy suppression of the rebellion, which was then flagrant throughout the South. To accomplish this desired end, the seizure and confiscation of the property of the leading rebels, was esteemed of much vaine. In the 5th section of the act this purpose is directly declared. The language we employed is: "That to insure the speedy termination of the present rebellion, it shall be the duty of the President of the United States to cause the seizure of all the estate and property money, stocks, credits and effects of the per sons hereinafter named in this section, an to apply and use the same and the proceed hereof for the support of the army of the United States."

This being the expressed object and pur-pose of the act of Congress, it is wholly un-necessary to inquire whether it was the ininsist on this defense, by their appearance in the court below, does not very clearly appear, nor is it now material for us to inquire. tention of the Government, that it should be executed during the contest under its selligerent rights; or after its termination and a copy has been substituted. The modern usage of nations, which have become laws, says Chief Justice Manshall, in the use of the United States, vs. PERCHEMAN, Peters, 82. Even in cases of conques or the conqueror to do more than to dis place the sovereign and assume don over the country, would be violated, and that sense of justice and right which is acknowledged and felt by the whole civilized world would be outraged, if private proper-ty should be generally confiscated and priate rights annulled. If this be the modern rule in case of conpuests, it would seem that its application it uses of rebellion-when the Government has regained its former dominion over its evolted subjects, should not be rigorous In the one case, conquests of a foreign coun try, gives absolute and unlimited sovereign ichts.
